Blue Ridge (C&O) Railroad: Culvert

HAER No. VA-12

Location: South of U.S. 250, 2.2 miles southeast of Waynesboro, Waynesboro vicinity, Augusta County, Virginia

Date of Construction: ca. 1860

Builder/Designer: Unknown

Present Owner: Chesapeake and Ohio/Baltimore and Ohio Railroad

Present Use: Railroad culvert

Significance: The Blue Ridge Railroad Culvert presently carries the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad over a small stream approximately one-half mile north of the west entrance to Claudius Crozet's Blue Ridge Tunnel. It is a semicircular stone arch with a span of approximately seven feet and was reportedly built in the late 1850s as part of the Blue Ridge Railroad.
